INDORE

(A JOURNEY FROM LIVING HERITAGE TO ECOLOGICALLY SENSITIVE CITY)

The Indrapur started in 810 A.D when King Pal Rajvansh built the Indreshwar Temple. It was then developed as an Army Transit camp during various invasions by the Mughals on the Malwa State.

Later, Akbar divided the Malwa region into 12 sarkars in which Indur fell under Ujjain Sarkar. In the year 1732, Bajirao - the Maratha ruler, again divided the region into four states. Indore, Gwalior, Dewas, and Dhar, and handed over the Indore region to the Holkars to Rule. In the year 1766, Tukojirao Holkar and his wife Ahilyabai Holkar descendants of Malharrao Holkar, started ruling over Malwa. At that time, the capital was Maheshwar and Indore was still an Army camp and a small Village.

Sir Patrick A Geddes (October 2, 1854-April 17, 1932) was a globally acclaimed urban planner, sociologist, botanist and educationist. Around 100 years ago, Indore had him as its planner. He created many institutions and designed the cities as diverse as Jerusalem, Colombo, Dhaka, Lahore and many Indian cities like Indore.

A man of varied talents, Sir Geddes was invited by Maharaja Tukojirao-III to Indore to suggest urban design for the evolving capital city of Holkars in the early 20th century.

Apart from being a historical city, Indore is also the educational and commercial capital of the state of Madhya Pradesh. The city started to expand from the epicenter Rajawada in all the four directions; touching airport in the west, ralamandal hills in the east, IT hub in north and Pithampur Industrial area in the south. The first reflection of the industrial revolution in Indore started with five cloth mills. Because of the mills, settlement grew near central areas and it gave a new identity to the city.

The bustling city of Indore is also known for its educational facilities in central India which houses schools, colleges and universities. There are various academies which are preparing students for competitive fields like architecture, engineering, law, medical science and management to name a few. It is the first city in India which hosts both IIT and IIM. One can also experience the vibrant taste palette from the diverse communities settled in Indore. The city is known for various records for hosting various food festivals.

In recent years, Indore has progressed as one of the ecologically sensitive cities. The city has been awarded with the title of the cleanest city of India thrice. Indore is developing not only in terms of solid waste management but it focuses on the principle of 3R that is source reduction, waste recycle and material reuse.

It is a city which is in close proximity with two Jyotirlingas-Mahakaleshwar in Ujjain (51 Km) and Omkareshwar (72 Km) in Mandhata, District Khandwa. Another holy city, Maheshwar situated at the banks of river Narmada is a city with prolific religious and cultural importance. The city is well connected through road, air and railways to Delhi, Mumbai, Bangalore, Hyderabad, Chennai, Trivandrum, Ahmedabad, Jaipur, Patna and Kolkata.

FROM THE DESK OF CHANCELLOR

The foundation of our traditional education system is transfer of knowledge to the next generation in the form of written inscriptions and oral discourses, and transfer of skills through learning by doing. In our university, we try to blend the traditional knowledge system with modern system without compromising on the important factors of both the systems. The neo-system starts with identification of qualities of the students with an aim to nurture them. Skill development is need of the day. Thus, by introducing diverse programs from agriculture to forensic science, we think that each of our students is equipped with a skill set that would help them in near future.

Student exchange and faculty exchange programs help to connect with the outside world with a focus on betterment of teaching-learning process. Tie ups with foreign universities provide a global platform to the students. By inviting scientists from the institutions like I.S.R.O., I.I.Sc. and D.R.D.O., we expose the students to be horizons of applied science and technology.

I am happy to welcome the fifth batch of students to SVVV and am pleased to wish them an enriching stay during the span of programs chosen by each one of them.

Purushottamdas Pasari Chancellor

FROM THE DESK OF VICE CHANCELLOR

Our university believes in holistic development of the students by exposing them to different dimensions of knowledge. The sharing of knowledge is structured in such a way that every student goes through a round of conceptual and experiential learning through an input of industry experts in the form of workshops; their knowledge base is judged through examination system and by different contests at university level. Tie up with professionally managed organizations like Apple, IBM, redhat and TCS helps our students to understand the latest advancements in technology at global level. Choice based credit system helps students to select the courses of their own interest. To break the monotony of rote learning, our pedagogy helps the students to think without limitations, and broaden their perspective about environment.

An effort is made to do things differently so that our students become more adaptive and versatile. I am delighted to receive the fifth batch of our students at the campus in July this year.
